NIGMS Specific Information The NIGMS will consider applications from institutions to enhance capacity in all areas relevant to the NIGMS mission. Applications should specify the department(s) or center(s) in which this P30 capacity building will be focused. Highest priority will be given to institutions that provide evidence that the award will support the resumption of a pre-existing search that was suspended due to economic factors. Budget and Project Period. Budgets for direct costs of up to $250,000 per year and project duration of up to two years may be requested. Funds Available and Anticipated Number of Awards: The NIGMS expects to make up to 20 awards in FY 2009, with total funding of approximately $10 million over the two year period of FY 2009 and 2010. Other information: NIGMS expects institutions to conduct open searches and seek faculty applications from women, members of racial and ethnic groups that are underrepresented in biomedical and behavioral research, individuals with disabilities, and individuals from disadvantaged backgrounds. This aspect of the proposed faculty recruitment strategy will be considered in funding decisions. Applications should describe plans for outreach and recruitment, as well as the recruitment process (e.g., the number of applications received, demographics of the applicant pool, interviews scheduled, etc.). Highest priority will be given to applications confirming an institutional commitment to provide two or more additional years of support after the end of the award. In addition, the NIGMS will consider portfolio balance in its selection of awards.
